2011 BUONI ANNI SANGIOVESE

SANTA YNEZ VALLEY

Our goal is to make classic Sangiovese that is dry, lean and complex. The typical Sangiovese aromas of spice and violets are here; complemented by ripe, earthy currants and black cherry. The wine has a wonderful silky texture. The tannins and firm acidity are present but integrated. Even though we are growing in one of the cooler climates in California we still get fully physiologically mature grapes. The firm but benevolent framework makes it a wine that is drinkable now.

The 2011 Buoni Anni Sangiovese is a blend of many clones from the Cent'Anni Estate (44%), Oak Savannah Vineyard (16%), Honea Vineyard (16%), Three Creek Vineyard (16%) and Stolpman Vineyard (8%).

VINTAGE CONDITIONS:

2011 was a year dominated by different kinds of weather. A nice cool growing season with a spring frost and some rain mid-harvest. The frost damage was limited. Light moisture in early October was followed by good drying conditions with sunny, breezy weather. Overall, good harvest weather and we picked grapes with balanced sugar, acid and grape maturity, with a normal crop level. It's an outstanding vintage.

"Kudos to winemaker Doug Margerum for holding onto this extremely pleasing wine long enough for all the components to come together. Six years in, the aromas of cola, black cherry, rose petal, pepper dust and crushed gravel are still fresh and vibrant, while the palate remains upright due to structural tannins. Flavors of blackberry, raspberry and baking spice abound, making for an elegant wine."
